The Haunted Gold Mines of Butte

Butte, Montana was once a booming mining town, and it's no surprise that it has its share of ghost stories. One of the most famous is the story of the Orphan Girl, a young girl who was killed in a mining accident in the early 1900s. Her ghost is said to haunt the Orphan Girl Mine, and visitors have reported seeing her apparition wandering the tunnels.

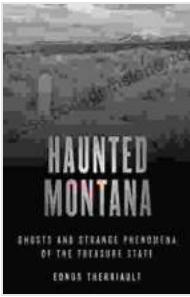

Another haunted gold mine in Butte is the Granite Mountain Mine. This mine was once the largest copper producer in the world, but it was closed in the 1980s. Since then, it has become a popular spot for ghost hunters, who have reported seeing the ghosts of miners who died in the mine.

The Strange Lights of Big Sky Country

Montana is known for its wide-open spaces and big skies, and it's no surprise that it has also been home to a number of strange lights in the sky. One of the most famous is the Great Falls Light, a mysterious light that has been seen in the sky over Great Falls, Montana for over a century. The light is said to be a ball of fire that moves erratically and changes color. Some people believe that the light is a UFO, while others believe that it is a natural phenomenon.

Another mysterious light that has been seen in Montana is the Livingston Light. This light is said to be a bright, white light that appears in the sky near Livingston, Montana. The light is said to be about the size of a basketball and moves slowly and erratically. Some people believe that the Livingston Light is a UFO, while others believe that it is a ghost.
